

Peljesac

PELJEŠAC is the second biggest peninsula in the Adriatic Sea with a length of 65 km (SE-NW). The peninsula has a diverse landscape with alternating bays, beaches, hills, and plains.

On the plains placed in the middle of the peninsula, shielded from the wind by hills vine is grown for the world-wide famous vines made in Pelješac, like Dinga and Postup.

Along the coast, on the north and south side there are small and big bays, some of them inhabited but most intact.

We will mention here only a few places where you can have a nice time, the rest is for you to discover.

OREBI OREBI is situated on the southern side of the peninsula, opposite the town Korula. Since the old times the inhabitants were seamen, and since the beginnings of the 20th century they have engaged in tourism, which became their primary activity. There is a ferry from Orebi to Korula every day.

There are a few small places near Orebi. On the west you will find Kušine, Viganj i Lovine, very attractive to surfers, and if you go east you will come to Poduje, Borje, Postup i Mokalo places that attract those who want some peace and quiet. There is also the Dinga area that gained more importance in tourism since the tunnel from Potomje was built.

STON is only 5 km far from the Adriatic Highway, placed at the entrance of the peninsula Pelješac. For its rich history and the protective walls, which are the longest in Europe, and especially for the cultivation of sea shells and oysters Ston is interesting for many visitors of the Dubrovnik region.

Next to Ston are Mali Ston, Hodilje, Luka, Duba, Broce i Koba, very pleasant places for swimming and water sports. Bay Prapatno Prapatno is a pearl for tourists who like camping on beautiful beaches.

TRPANJ is on the northern side of the peninsula and it has a ferry connection to Ploče. The inhabitants are mainly engaged in navigation, fishing, and tourism. A lot of green and the clear sea are the hallmark of this area. Near Trpanj are Duba and Divna with one of the most beautiful beaches on the Adriatic Sea.

On the northern side of the peninsula are the small bays Crkvice, Velika Prapatna, Osobjava. TRSTENIK is situated in the middle of the peninsula. Clear sea, a big beach, and natural beauty are a real bait for many tourists. There is a ferry from Trstenik to Mljet during the summer season. ŽULJANA is situated in a big bay, and near it and in the bay Vučine are many beautiful sand beaches. DRAČE are also in the middle of the peninsula. With the beautiful bays, Drače and the near-by Sreser, attract many tourists during the summer season. You can also find Brijesta in this region.
